Safety Assessments and Regulatory Support

Cosmetics are a globally expanding industry and include products for skin care, hair care, nail care, make-up, and fragrances. Cosmetics encompass not only traditional personal care products, but also products in the emerging fields of cosmeceuticals and nutricosmetics. Regular introductions of new products and product reformulations have created a dynamic and opportunistic industry. However, this opportunity poses unique regulatory challenges as the quality, safety, efficacy, and labeling requirements for a cosmetic product differ according to the country of distribution. In a globalized market, it becomes challenging to identify the relevant regulations that affect the introduction of a new cosmetic product.

Intertek can help you navigate the development and placement of a product into the marketplace with our team of qualified professionals.

Your Challenge

Cosmetics comprise a diverse set of materials that involve a variety of regulatory hurdles, including toxicological, environmental, and nanotechnological considerations. As the regulations for cosmetics are complex and vary among countries, it becomes important to ensure you receive reliable advice and technical support in order to comply with the relevant regulations to facilitate a successful and efficient time to market. Identifying and complying with the necessary quality, safety, efficacy, and labeling requirements can be challenging. You need a knowledgeable consulting company with a wealth of experience in international markets to help you achieve a successful product launch.
